IMA: Withdraw Ayush surgery notification

Times News Network

New Delhi: The Indian Medical Association (IMA) on Tuesday demanded withdrawal of a Central Council of Indian Medicine (CCIM) notification authorising postgraduate Ayurveda practitioners to perform general surgical procedures, saying the move was a "degradation" to a core-fused mix of medical education and practice.

The November notification by the CCIM, a statutory body under the Ministry of Health, tries to regulate the Indian system of medicine, listed 38 general surgical procedures and around 20 procedures in various other specialties. It also tries to standardise the Indian system of medicine. The notification is a "degradation" to a core-fused mix of medical education and practice.

The IMA said on Tuesday, the IMA has filed a writ in the Supreme Court against the notification, saying it is a "degradation" to a core-fused mix of medical education and practice. '95% of ICUs are manned by Ayush docs, IMA's opposition is hypocrisy'

TOI Interview

A government notification (asking surgeons to be allowed to do haemodialysis) doctors are allowed to do haemodialysis and many among the public. The chairman of the regulatory body for Ayurveda, the Central Council of Indian Medicine (CCIM) Ajit Kadam, says that 95% of ICUs are manned by Ayush doctors, and he accuses the IMA of hypocrisy.

TOI INTERVIEW

Why do you see as allopathic doctors protesting against asking for such services as haemodialysis? The National Accreditation Board for Hospitals and HealthCare Providers wrote to the government in February 2020, asking for such services to be provided by allopathic doctors.
